Main Particulars

Welcome to School House Mews in Romilly Quarter, a truly exceptional and rarely available property that is an absolute must-see. Botham Williams is thrilled to present this beautifully converted school house for sale. This property seamlessly blends modern elements with original features, creating a unique and charming home where character and style harmoniously coexist. They were built and designed by Brownfield Green, a Bristol based property development company specialising in the conversion of historic buildings into contemporary and sustainable new homes.

The Romilly Road area, where Romilly Quarter is nestled, has a rich historical heritage that dates back to 1412 when the Romilly family acquired substantial estates in the vicinity. The construction of Barry docks marked a period of rapid growth in Barry, and in 1889, the Sunday School House was erected, serving as a church while the main chapel was under construction. A decade later, the impressive Neo-Gothic Chapel was inaugurated. It is believed that both the Chapel and the School House were constructed by the esteemed civil engineer, Thomas A. Walker. Mr. Walker was a figure of remarkable engineering accomplishments and made significant contributions to industrial development by overseeing the construction of the Barry Docks, Railway, and The Severn Tunnel.

Situated within walking distance of the vibrant High Street, with its array of boutique shops, delis, and essential amenities, this residence offers both convenience and charm. Additionally, it boasts excellent transportation connections and is within strolling distance of the local bays and parks.

The generously proportioned open-plan kitchen and dining space, complete with an island, seamlessly connects to the sunken living area, which, in turn, opens onto the rear garden, providing an ideal outdoor retreat. This delightful home is bathed in natural light, accentuating its original features.

The first floor features a spacious master bedroom with an en-suite bathroom, featuring unique shelf details and wooden panelling. A second bedroom boasts a walk-in wardrobe, while a charming third bedroom occupies the attic level. The fusion of modern amenities and original architectural elements makes this school house a truly outstanding residence, harmonizing character and style in perfect synergy.
